GOOD PROGRESS
IN THE HERVEY
MURDER TRIAL.

Many Witnesses Put on by the State
To Establish a Circumstantial Chain.

A RED HANDKERCHIEF MASK

Ascribed to Mooney and a White One to Friday—Fixing the Time of the Murder.

There were many witnesses for the state put on at the Hervey murder trial yesterday. The first proceeding was the cross-examination of Henry Hervey, brother of the murdered man, James Hervey. He was unable to give a definite description of the principal intruder, supposed to be John Mooney, and all he was certain of was that the man wore a red handkerchief mask and he thought he had a slouch hat, similar to the one shown in court. This hat was taken from Mooney. Mr. Hervey said he was "conscious," that is, knew that two men entered the house, but he did not get a look at the second fellow.

Lock-up Keeper Brandt.

The next witness was City Lock-up Keeper William Brandt, who said he had known John Mooney for several years, and he assisted in searching Mooney and Friday after their arrest. He found four loaded shells in Mooney's pockets and one in Friday's, and in Mooney's overcoat he found two handkerchiefs, one blue and the other, red. From Friday, witness got a white handkerchief. The red handkerchief was knotted in the corners. Mooney was wet with perspiration, when brought in the lock-up, said the witness, and when the latter remarked that he must have come in a hurry, Mooney glared at him in silence.

Officer Hinkelman.

Officer H. J. Hinkelman said he first saw the defendants on the night of March 1, when he and Officer Lawson arrested them out Caldwell's run, near Fette's bowling alley. He had been ordered to keep watch for the murderers at this point by Lieutenant Ingram. He and Lawson started out the run about 9:45 o'clock, and when they reached Fette's they heard the voices of two men coming on the road, that strikes another at Fette's, so the officers hid in the shadow of the bowling alley building, and when the men came close, the officers stepped out. Hinkelman said "I want you," to Friday, covering him with a revolver. Lawson had to struggle with Mooney; the latter was thrown to the ground, and had a revolver pointed at Lawson; Hinkelman then showed a pistol in Mooney's face, whereupon the latter submitted to arrest. Previously a gun had been taken from Friday.

Officer Lawson.

Officer Lawson corroborated Officer Hinkelman's story. He said that in the scuffle with Mooney, he tripped the latter, causing him to fall. The witness had examined the revolver taken from Mooney and he judged by its condition that three chambers had been emptied that night. The witness was subjected to a lengthy cross-examination by Col. Arnett.

Lieutenant Devinney.

Lieutenant George Devinney identified Mooney's revolver and testified that it had three soiled chambers, giving the impression that three balls had been discharged from it. Colonel Arnett endeavored to make the point that the revolver had been loaded and unloaded since it was kept in Chief Clemens' office.

John Huff.

John Huff, a neighbor of the Herveys, testified that he heard a pistol shot and the blowing of a horn about 8:30 o'clock, the night of the murder. The witness was one of the first to arrive on the scene.

Mrs. McCartney.

Mrs. McCartney, a cousin of the murdered man and an inmate of his home, was the next witness. She, James and Henry Hervey sat in the sitting room the night of the murder from supper time. Miss Gillilan was in the room part of the time. The witness detailed to Mr. Howard the location of the windows and doors in the room. One window was partly protected by a screen, and witness said a person could have looked into the room from the outside. She next described the noise made by the murderers in entering the house. They crashed in the door. Mrs. McCartney advanced toward the door, but before she reached it, a man, with a red handkerchief over the upper part of his face and with a club in his hand, entered the room. There were two men, one larger than the other.

Mr. Howard asked Mrs. McCartney to compare the prisoners with the men she saw, but Col. Arnett objected and the court sustained him. The witness was then asked if Mooney or Friday corresponded with the murderers. She said the larger man, Mooney, corresponded in form, but she hadn't seen the murderers' faces owing to the masks.

James Hervey was close to the big man, said Mrs. McCartney when she ran from the room. She hadn't got two feet out of the room until she heard a shot fired. She then ran out to the wash-house, intending to proceed further to give an alarm, but fearing there were other men outside, she returned and went to an upstairs room by a back stairs. The witness told of the alarm later given. A bell was rung and a horn blown. The latter was done, she thought, by Henry Hervey. She described the position of the murdered man in the hall. She heard three shots fired. Two were fired close together and there was an interval between the first and second. She couldn't identify a red handkerchief, presented by Mr. Howard, as the one worn by one of the murderers. After the murder, she noticed that one bullet entered the ceiling and another struck a door.

To Colonel Arnett, Mrs. McCartney

BLOOD POISON.

Mercury and Potash
Make Wrecks,
Not Cures

In some cases the external signs of Contagious Blood Poison are so slight that the victim is firmly within the grasp of the monster before the true nature of the disease is known. In other cases the blood is quickly filled with this poisonous virus and the swollen glands, mucus patches in the mouth, sores on scalp, ulcers on tongue, sore throat, eruptions on skin, copper colored spots, and falling hair and ceyrows leave no room for doubt, as these are all unmistakable signs of Contagious Blood Poison. Doctors still prescribe mercury and potash as the only cure for Blood Poison. These poisonous minerals never yet made a complete and permanent cure of Contagious Blood Poison. They drive the disease back into the system, cover it up for a while, but it breaks out again in worse form. These powerful minerals produce mercurial rheumatism and the most offensive sores and ulcers, causing the joints to stiffen and finger nails to drop off. Mercury and potash make wrecks, not cures, and those who have been dosed with these drugs are never after free from aches and pain.

S. S. S. acts in an entirely different manner, being a purely vegetable remedy; it forces the poison out of the system, and instead of tearing down, builds up and invigorates the general health. S. S. S. is the only antidote for this specific virus, and therefore the only cure for Contagious Blood Poison. No matter in what stage or how hopeless the case may appear, even though pronounced incurable by the doctors, S. S. S. can be relied upon to make a rapid, permanent cure. S. S. S. is not a new, untried remedy; an experience of nearly fifty years has proven it a sure and unfailing cure for this disease. It is the only purely vegetable blood medicine known.

Mr. H. L. Myers, 100 Mulberry St., Newark, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards I suffered. Before I became convinced that the spread all over my body. These soon broke out into sores, and it is easy to imagine the suffering I endured. I tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S. S. S. I was greatly improved, and was delighted with the result. The large, red spots on my chest began to grow paler and smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger, and my appetite improved. I was soon entirely well, and my skin as clear as a piece of glass."

Send for our Home Treatment Book, which contains valuable information about this disease, with complete directions for self treatment. Our medical department is in charge of physicians who have made a life-time study of blood diseases. Don't hesitate to write for any information or advice wanted. We make no charge whatever in the most sacred confidence. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

the night of March 1, just previous to going out to Elm Grove, with his deputies, to investigate the affair. Neither Mooney or Friday would answer his questions, but Mooney complained about being arrested. Friday said something, but it was not material and witness could not recall it. His talk extended to a statement that he lived in Wheeling, and roomed, among other places at Muldoon's, across the creek. Both refused positively to explain where they were that night. On their person were found a penknife or two and some cards, one card containing "Dukes" Kelly's business advertisement. He did not then closely examine the revolver found on them, but did so yesterday. "One was a 'Boston bulldog,' and the sheriff said he noticed that three chambers bore adhesions of charred powder.

The sheriff said two shoes taken from Mooney and Friday were brought out to Elm Grove by Lieutenant Ingram, the night of the murder, so as to compare with the footprints in the snow. The proceedings after his arrival at Hervey's were reviewed. After interviewing members of the family, he telephoned Ingram to bring out the shoes. The larger shoe corresponded with some footprints and the smaller with others. About the house the shoes were fitted in at least two dozen places. This included on the porch, in front of a window, in front of the carriage house and along a fence. The shoes were fitted to tracks near the county infirmary and along the road running up the hill past the poor house, going past the watering trough, where the roads divert, and past the poor house the road was clear of tracks except to the two made which corresponded to the shoes carried by the officers.

The shoes were brought from Chief Clemens' office into court, but Colonel Arnett objected to their identification. This point was laid in abeyance, court adjourning at 5:55 p. m.

Miss Gillilan.

Miss Gillilan, an inmate of the Hervey home, was upstairs when the men entered the house. She heard the noise accompanying the opening of the door, but supposed it was merely the door being slammed. Her attention was next attracted by a pistol shot. She saw a man on the stairs, about the third step from the landing. The stairs ran from the front door. Something white was across the man's face, and he was standing, looking down. She wasn't positive that there were more than two shots. She saw the man when she opened her bedroom door, and she closed it after catching sight of the man who appeared to be standing still. Shortly afterward she heard Henry Hervey rushing through the house and exclaiming that James had been shot, and she left her room, meeting Mrs. McCartney and then saw James Hervey's dead form in the hall. This was about 8:30 p. m.

The witness discovered a bullet that was among scraps of plaster which fell from the ceiling, where a bullet struck. She also saw a club in the hall. The bullet, which was offered in evidence, was given by the witness to Mr. Burkam.

Cross-examined by Colonel Arnett, Miss Gillilan said she had lived at the Hervey home three years, and on the night of the murder she had retired to her room about 8 o'clock. She was kneeling down, saying her prayers, when she heard the first pistol shot.

Dr. Carter.

Dr. Carter, of Philadelphia, who was James Hervey's physician, testified that he examined the body shortly after midnight on March 1, and he gave a description of the bullet wound and contusions on the head of the murdered man. The witness assisted in the post-mortem examination, and he detailed the course of the fatal bullet after its entrance in the right side of the cheek, also the scalp gash and the bruise on the nose. The bullet was found in the left side of the head, below the ear. Two small pieces of bone were fastened in the ball, which was battered out of shape by contact with the skull. The death of James Hervey was due to the bullet, which severed the medulla oblongata and entered the cerebellum. The wound on the nose was likely caused by a blunt instrument. Some of the bruises might have been made by a fall.

D. S. Thornburgh.

D. S. Thornburgh, who lives near the Hervey place, said he visited it shortly after the murder, John Huff having told him of the occurrence. He thought Mr. Huff called about 9:20 p. m.

J. S. Creighton.

J. S. Creighton, another neighbor, said he heard the alarm horn tooting from the Hervey place; thought it was about 8:30 p. m. Like Mr. Thornburgh, the witness noted evidences of a struggle at the Hervey house and when shown a piece of fence paling by Mr. Meyer, alleged to have been used by the murderers, Mr. Creighton said: "That's the piece." This piece was in the house and witness said he found the other piece near the carriage house next day. He also found a wagon jack in front of the gate. All the articles mentioned were shown in court.

Sheriff Richards.

Sheriff Richards was the next witness. He had talked with the prisoners

Paralysis from Coffee.

"Some time ago I had a shock of paralysis, which resulted from the continued use of coffee. Dizzy head and confused feelings were constantly with me. I was induced by a physician to leave off coffee and try Postum Food Coffee, with the result that I am now clear-headed and in perfect health." Mrs. F. E. Willoughby, Amherst Station, N. H. John Lynch Arrested.

John Lynch, who was employed as bar-tender in "Dukes" Riley's saloon, and was wanted in the Hervey murder trial, voluntarily surrendered himself to the authorities yesterday. The warrant for his arrest was sworn out before Squire Greer several days ago, but Lynch left town, going to Clarksburg. He was committed to jail, and he is expected to give important testimony for the state. Lynch, Kitty Sinclair, John Connors and "Dukes" Kelly form the quartette that is supposed to know of a conspiracy to rob the Hervey place.
